Introducing Mr. Espresso to the Club –

Carlo Di Ruocco, better known as “Mr. Espresso,” founded his company in 1978 but learned in Salerno, Italy the nuances of making the perfect brew. His mentor taught him bean selection, blending and the “holy grail” of roasting with aged oak.

He began importing coffee machines and eventually provided the Caffè Mediterraneo, Telegraph Avenue’s famed coffee house, its first espresso machines.

The transition to roasting coffee was inevitable. His first experiments with wood roasting were for family only. However, by 1982 he began commercial roasting in tiny batches. Di Ruocco was one of the first to roast espresso as it is done in Italy - as a beverage to be consumed by itself with all the flavor, nuance and complexity of a fine glass of wine.

Come Enjoy!
